The 2009 Good Jobs, Green Jobs National Conference will bring together 2,000 prominent leaders from the labor movement, business and industry, environmental organizations and community groups, as well as elected officials and decision makers from government, to forge an agenda for transforming our struggling economy through a variety of innovative environmental investments — including energy efficiency, renewable energy and green technologies. This agenda will constitute a powerful “new green deal” — creating jobs, increasing energy independence, reducing global warming and dramatically expanding clean energy and green technology markets.

The Conference will:

- Focus the country on the specific combination of policy changes, public investments and funding mechanisms that are necessary to accelerate the growth of the green economy;
- Quantify and illustrate the job-creating potential of global warming solutions and green chemistry;
- Demonstrate the breadth of the coalition that supports the transition to a clean, renewable energy economy; and
- Highlight the potential of the green economy to forge a new social agenda that lifts Americans out of poverty, improves public health and strengthens our middle class.

2009 Speaker

Leo Gerard
International President,
United Steelworkers

“What we know for sure is that clean energy and green technologies create jobs in the United States. With working people as integral stakeholders in this debate, the United Steelworkers’ Rapid Response Network is holding its conference at the same time as Good Jobs, Green Jobs because we know that mobilizing Steelworkers across the country to take action is the key to making this green economy a reality.”

2009 Speakers

U.S. Senator Majority Leader
Harry Reid
Nevada
Invited

Governor Jennifer M. Granholm

Additional Conference Highlights

- Green Jobs Expo – To highlight the rapid development of green jobs and careers, the Green Jobs Expo will feature dynamic and interactive displays from corporations, academic institutions, trade groups, manufacturers, government and non-profit organizations — showing the depth and breadth of green jobs and academic majors that currently exist and those on the horizon.

The Green Jobs Expo Theater, located within the Expo, will allow Conference participants, as well as high school, college and vocational students to gather and listen to brief presentations showcasing green initiatives, jobs and careers in a company or field.

The Expo is free and open to the public and will take place on Thursday, February 5, 2009, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Marriott Wardman Park Hotel.

To participate in the Green Jobs Expo as an exhibitor, visit www.greenjobsconference.org.

- Green Jobs Advocacy Day – Just a few weeks after a new Congress and administration take office, Conference attendees will have the opportunity to head up to Capitol Hill to educate lawmakers and shape the national agenda around a new, green economy.

To participate, check the Green Jobs Advocacy Day box on your registration form. For more information, visit www.greenjobsconference.org.

“With the green economy, we have the opportunity to create green jobs that lift people out of poverty in local communities. Green For All is bringing its added strength and numbers to the Good Jobs, Green Jobs National Conference to ensure that the voices of all Americans — particularly those from communities of color and low-income communities — are heard in this dialogue.”

“I believe this Conference will be the leading forum in 2009 to shape the national debate on how best to connect government leadership and decision-makers with corporate, labor and environmental organizations, and introduce the right mix of risks and rewards, so that transforming the national environmental equation becomes a virtuous cycle.”
